

Declassified and Approved For Release 2014/04/25 :
CIA-RDP99-00777R000400690002-4

News articles from the
DCI is Northwestern University
Kellogg School of Management.
I have sent the original on to Pat and B. Baker/Devine

Date

Declassified and Approved For Release 2014/04/25 : U.S.GPO:1988-0-209-911/79339
CIA-RDP99-00777R000400690002-4

MILWAUKEE SENTINEL
MILWAUKEE, WISC.
D. 196,068

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

People

in the news

From Sentinel wire services

Fonda, vets make peace

■ Jane Fonda, who angered Vietnam veterans by traveling to North Vietnam, changed some feelings in an "almost spiritual" meeting and led the Veterans of Foreign War commander in Naugatuck, Conn., to take down an anti-Fonda poster.

The Saturday night meeting came a day after she apologized on national television for hurting veterans with some of her anti-war activities, including posing for photos on a North Vietnamese anti-aircraft gun during a trip to Hanoi in 1972.

"There seemed to be a genuine bonding between Jane Fonda and the Vietnam veterans who were present," said Brian Powell, who served in Vietnam in 1969-'70.

■ Oliver Stone, writer-director of the movie "Platoon," spoke out for a veteran who served with him in Vietnam in the platoon that was the basis of Stone's Academy-Award winning movie.

Stone told the Oklahoma parole board that Toby T. Sanders, convicted of burglary, developed his drug habit in the platoon where both saw duty and were wounded in 1967.

The board unanimously approved Sanders' parole request on condition he seek drug counseling.

■ William J. Webster, director of the CIA, told a graduating class of mid-career executives at Northwestern University, in Evanston, Ill., that trust is the bottom line in business, government and human dealings.

"There are some common principles," Webster said Saturday. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

JOHNSON CITY PRESS

JOHNSON CITY, TN
DAILY 32,000

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

UB

65

Webster says bottom line is truth

EVANSTON, Ill. — The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives. "I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

DAILY REPORT

ONTARIO, CA
DAILY 40,755

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

HI

462

Trust is keyword

William Webster

He said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told an Evanston, Ill., graduating class of mid-career executives.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he

HARRISBURG, PA
NEWS
D. 54,180

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

Put faith in trust, CIA director says

EVANSTON, Ill. — The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management in Evanston, Ill.

William Webster
ty's Kellogg School of Management.

The Atlanta Journal
ATLANTA, GA.
D. 185,375

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

CIA Chief to Graduates: Trust Others

The Associated Press

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates of the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management in Evanston, Ill.

BAKERSFIELD CALIFORNIAN

BAKERSFIELD, CA
DAILY 81,721

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

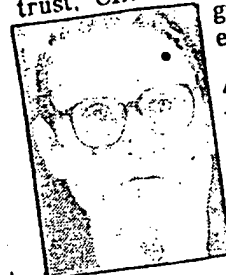

BURRELLE'S

31

30

CIA director promotes trust

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

Webster

70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

Ledger-Star
NORFOLK, VIRGINIA
D. 80,961

JUN 21 1988

BURRELLE'S

CIA director says trust is important

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster said.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said.

Webster spoke Saturday to graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

MIAMI, FLA.

D. 458.760 SUN. 559.758

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
ATLANTA, GA.
D. 255,636

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'SCIA Chief to Graduates: Trust OthersThe Associated Press* 1643A

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates of the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management in Evanston, Ill.

JUN 21 1988

BURRELLE'STrust (but verify?)

What advice did the chief of the CIA, that agency of secrets and subterfuge, have for graduates? The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust. "I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," CIA Director William Webster told graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

WEBSTER

THE BRIDGEPORT TELEGRAM
BRIDGEPORT, CONN.
D. 18,340

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'STrust me

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives. "I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other." Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management in Evanston Ill.

The Denver Post
DENVER, COLO.
D. 227,105 SUN. 425,454

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'SCIA chief tells grads importance of trust

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives in Evanston, Ill. There are some common principles in public service, he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other," Webster told 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

William Webster

The Hartford Courant
HARTFORD, CONN.
D. 222,750 SUN. 301,850

KINGSPORT TIMES NEWS

KINGSPORT, TN
DAILY 47,636

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

JUN 21 1988

BURRELLE'S

67

BURRELLE'S

UE

PEOPLE*Bottom line: trust

EVANSTON, Ill. — The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

Webster

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's School of Management.

NEW HAVEN REGISTER

NEW HAVEN, CT
DAILY 87,145

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

49

F6

Trust essential, Webster asserts

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

William Webster

HERALD-DISPATCH

HUNTINGTON, WV
DAILY 41,630

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

35

BURRELLE'S

UC

Chief spy: Trust is the basis

EVANSTON, Ill. — The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

William Webster

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

—Associated Press

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

ST. LOUIS, MO.

D. &amp; SAT. 308,279

SUN. 511,669

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

Chaplin: "A lot in common" People 16434

Rock star MICHAEL JACKSON fulfilled a childhood dream by visiting the widow of Charlie Chaplin at her home in Switzerland, at a break in his European concert tour, a Swiss newspaper reported Sunday.

The tabloid, Sonntags Blick, said that Jackson visited OONA

O'NEILL CHAPLIN on Friday at her home in Vevey, overlooking Lake Geneva. He gave a concert Thursday night in Basel.

The paper quoted Chaplin as telling Jackson that he had "a lot in common with her husband" because they were both born poor and had to strive.

The paper said that Jackson was a great admirer of Chaplin and that he knew many details of the life of the silent-film comedian, who died in 1977.

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director WILLIAM H. WEBSTER said Saturday.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke Saturday in Evanston, Ill., to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management.

STOCKTON RECORD

STOCKTON, CA
DAILY & SAT 51,415

MONDAY

JUN 20 1988

BURRELLE'S

688

FD

NEWSMAKERS

Bottom line is trust, CIA director says 1643A

The bottom line in business, government and human dealings is trust, CIA Director

William Webster told a graduating class of mid-career executives.

"I've spent half of the last 40 years in public service and the rest in the private sector, and there are some common principles," he said. "And the most important one is that things work better when people trust each other."

Webster spoke

Saturday to 70 graduates from the executive master's program at Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management in Evanston, Ill.

WEBSTER